In Italy, there are many organizations which assist and help women who are abused:

24 hours telephone helpline

The public utility number 1522 is active 24 hours a day, every day of the year, and is accessible from the entire national territory for free, both from landline and mobile.

The operators answer in Italian, English, French, Spanish, Arabic, Russian, Ukrainian, Portuguese, and Polish.

Cases of violence that are of an emergency character are welcomed with a specific technical-operational procedure shared with the Police/Carabinieri

In Italy, domestic violence, rape and sexual assault crimes have a fast track system for the prosecution called 'red code' ('codice rosso'). Once you make your report, the police are obliged to start investigations and refer the case to the local public prosecutor (PM). You will be heard by the public prosecutor within three days of notification of the offence.

1522 was launched in 2006 by the Department for Equal Opportunities with the aim of developing a broad system of action for the emergence and contrast of the phenomenon of intra and extra-family violence.

SHELTER FOR WOMEN

Differenza Donna (hereinafter DD) was founded in Rome on the 6th of March 1989 to expose, fight, prevent, and overcome gender-based violence.

Since the beginning, DD believes that discrimination, marginalization, and oppression of women are a widespread, complex, and serious social phenomenon that can be effectively fought through specific competences only.

Margate, Kent

Therefore, DD has the mission of turning into reality a society in which every woman is a free and economically independent person, rich in dignity and wisdom.

DD is a founding member of the National Association D.I.Re. – Donne in Rete contro la violenza, the national network of anti-violence centers and women's shelters.

#ChangeYourIdeasButKeepYourPrinciples

Today, DD is a large NGO with hundreds of members, operators, and activists of different professions, who carry out both national and international projects. The NGO has chosen the Anti-violence Centers as a strategic tool for its interventions, and which are designed and built as places of protection.

DD has also involved thousands of high school students in violent prevention projects to create awareness among young people about the importance of mutual respect within relationships, built on the value of difference and free of gender violence and stereotypes.

Both centers and, where available, shelters are quite widespread on the Italian territory, but, since they're mostly organized on a voluntary basis, they are quite small sized. The majority of centres are open to victims of gender based, domestic and sexual violence.

Some shelters are able to offer hospitality to women with children, but anti violence centers can also try to find a temporary accommodation for them in other specific structures.
